Amarula Lapa.

Visit the home of Amarula Cream. If you had been to Africa before you might have drink some Amarula Cream, and might be very familiar with it. However, your hunting area is close to the home of Amarula Cream... well worth to visit, and also getting some artefacts and souvenirs from this shop... once you drink the fruit juices of Africa, juices from the elephant... you will come back time and time again for more.

Amarula is a cream liqueur from South Africa. It is made with sugar, cream and the fruit of the African marula tree (Sclerocarya birrea) which is also locally called the Elephant tree or the Marriage Tree. It has an alcohol content of 17% by volume

THE MARULA FRUIT

There is just one place on earth where the Marula trees grow – across Africa’s subequatorial plains. And there is just one time of year when the female Marula trees bear their exotic fruit – at the height of our beautiful summer. The size of small plums but oval in shape, the Marula fruit ripens to a rich yellow, with a tough outer skin surrounding its fibrous, white flesh. Containing four times more vitamin C than the average orange, Marula is a succulent fruit with a citrus tang and a creamy, nutty taste.

Elephants enjoy eating the fruit of the marula tree. Because of the marula tree's association with elephants, the distiller has made them its symbol and supports elephant conservation efforts, co-funding the Amarula Elephant Research Programme at the University of Natal, Durban.¹ For marketing efforts it produces elephant-themed collectible items.

Entrance is for free, light lunches are available, and most are connected with the fruit, or the cream. Items to buy are cheap and related to the South African Rand... here you pay for what you buy... you can just look and take pictures...

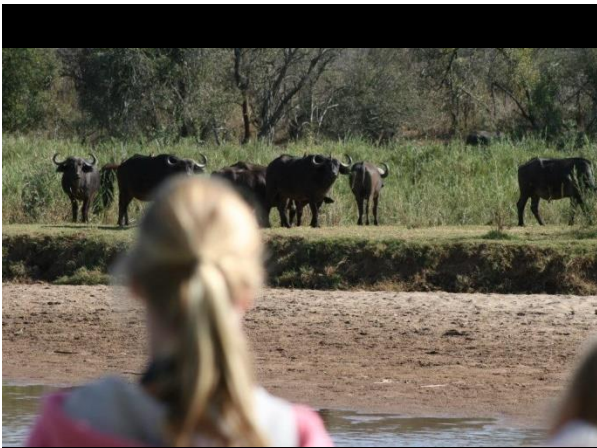

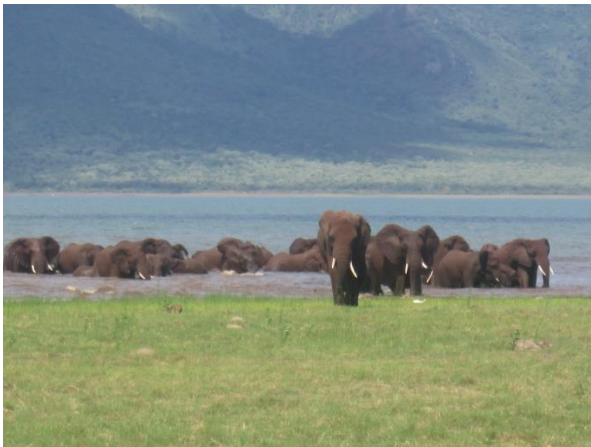

This trip can be combined with a half day in Kruger National Park, or with other activities...

Pontoon Boat cruise:

Take a boat cruise down the Elephants River on a pontoon boat... for either fishing or just taking photos. A half day or a full day is possible. On a cruise like this you can either have the boat privately or book in a group.

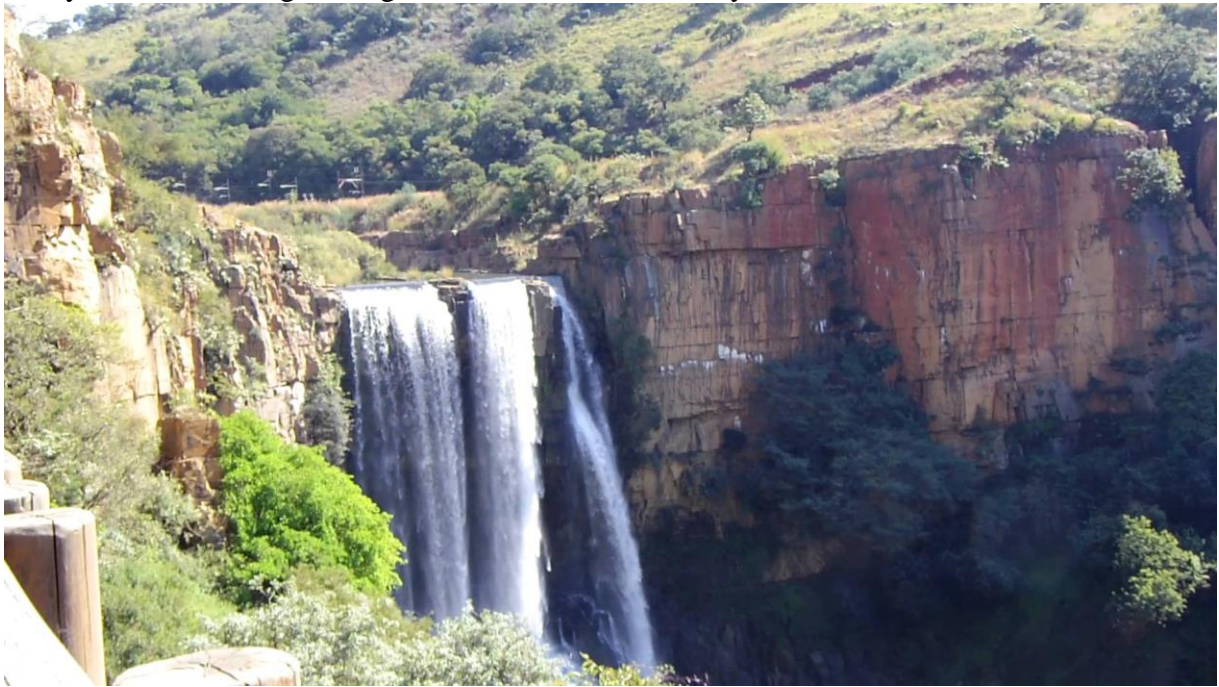

On a typical cruise it is possible to see elephants/hippo/crocodile and many other species...it is big 5 country and any specie could be viewed from boat coming to drink water, or just relaxing in the sun.

In these waters one can find the Tiger Fish, it is a predator, and good techniques to fish them is either trolling slowly with a lure or putting down the anchor and use meat as bait. A lot of good photos can be taken from boat side...

Artefacts in the Mountains:

These we drive up to the mountains, the artefacts are next to the road, and here one can find these items at a very reasonable price. Note that there are no Credit Card facilities... so make sure you have exchange enough South African Rand for your needs...

There are many shops along the road, and we normally drive from one shop to the next. These items are hand crafted, and the people selling these items normally would be the talented people who crafted these by hand.

Rehabilitation Centre:

Get out for the day and come visit the Moholoholo Wildlife Rehabilitation Centre. This fabulous centre is home to injured, abandoned and poisoned wildlife. Some of the animals you may stumble across are the lion, cheetah, serval, honey badger, eagles, hyena, leopard, vultures, many baby animals and much more.

Moholoholo started out small with one or two baby and injured animals and word spread about the excellent work done caring for and releasing these animals back into the wild.

Some animals that have been rescued cannot be returned to the wild due to their circumstances and have permanent residency at the centre.

The staff at the centre is incredibly enthusiastic about creating awareness and helping preserve our wildlife. Some animals are bred at the centre and then released. A nominal fee is charged for guided tours which are about 2 hours long.

Fishing:

We have various options for fishing.

One can fish in one of the rivers, like the elephants river... while wildlife can come drink water. One takes a boat for fishing on either some of the rivers or a lake... there are various waters with different fish species. It all depends on what the requirement would be...

We have tiger fish and to successfully fish, they require more technique and platform to start with. Boats might push cost up a little.

Fish that we commonly have in the waters in the area are...

Forty-nine fish species are found in Kruger's rivers, including two of the rarest species in the world - the lungfish and the mosquito-eating killifish.

Deep sea fishing

It is recommended that for this trip we had to sleep at the coastal town of either St Lucia or Richards's bay in the Kwa-Zulu Natal province. It is far from the hunting area and a 700 kilometre drive is needed. In this case hunters can fly in to Phalaborwa airport on arrival. We drive to the coastal town... do some deep sea fishing as required, and then drive towards OR Tambo Johannesburg for your departure.

Summer Fishing Species include Marlin, Sailfish, Dorado, Wahoo, Cuda (King Mackerel) and Tuna.

Winter Deep Sea Fishing Species include Queen Mackerel, Tuna and Cuda (occasionally).

Deep Sea Fishing St Lucia Techniques:

Live bait fishing is in particular very popular of the St Lucia coast, smaller bait fish are used for the likes of Cuda, Snoek (Queen Mackerel). While larger live baits such as bonito is used for Marlin and Sailfish.

Trolling with lures offers good results for Dorado, Sailfish and Marlin.

Trolling with bait strips is particularly good for catching Queen Mackerel in the winter months.

Flick Sticking is incredibly fun especially when the Queen Mackerel are biting as light fishing tackle is used.

Big Game Fishing (marlin & sailfish) larger lures are used if no live bait is available. Trolling with lures for big game fish also offers us to fish in larger areas.
